Those are encouraging words, but many Americans wish effect that military service is not the armament of U. S. forces in Korea had included some of only a duty to the country but can these new tanks. American tanks used in Korea did not compare favorably with the tanks the Russians have today.

The new tanks the U.S. will start producing a few months from now may or may not prove radically better than the new tanks the Russians will have later on. In any case, Russia is reported so far ahead of the U. S. in numbers, if not in quality, of tanks, that it may require years to overtake the Problem Red's lead.

But it is good to hear Mr. Alexander's news, for all that. It is better to have tanks on order than not to have them, period.

TO REPLACE CASUALTIES

The army's announcement that it will soon ask for the draft of 50,000 additional men to replace casualties is another commentary on the heavy portion of the United Nations fight at school when he later enters in Korea that is being borne by this country.

Families of the 50,000 dead and wounded in Korea already have had the war brought home to them in a tragic way. Many American boys never will return, while thousands of others are back here in hospitals under treatment for the child for some time take care of wounds and injuries they received while fighting against Com- while the mother is present and munist aggression.

Now they have to be replaced. Our forces cannot stand the loss of 50,000 men at a time when every effort is being made to build them up. Draft calls for the additional men, to play with others of his age, this over and above those already scheduled, are expected to go play can help him grow less dependent emotionally on his out shortly.

Those who fell in Korea did so fighting against aggression which threatens the whole world. Those who replace Them will help build up a military force against that same world-wide threat. That is something that other members of the U.N., who have been slow to support the action in Korea, ought never to forget.

LATIN-AMERICAN COOPERATION?

The United States may face some aggravating problems In seeking Latin-American co-operation when the foreign mininsters of the 21 American republics meet in February. The come much earlier in the day, or fact is that South and Central American governments still are piqued at the failure of the United States to come to their economic aid after the war ended.

Latin-American countries then needed dollars and technical assistance. Where they had the dollars as a result of production of raw materials they could get no consumer goods, and inflation plagued them.

Now, it is feared they will set a price in advance or any production aid in the United States rearmament effort.

Though the Point Four program has done something to dread having his mother out of help make the more backward Western Hemisphere countries frightful dreams for months and self-sustaining, those nations consider it insufficient to meet their present needs.

DIVIDED ON WAR

There continues to be a wide difference of opinion among the nation's top men as to the imminence of war with Russia.

Senator Capehart of Indiana says he would vote for a declaration of war against China to give American boys fighting in Korea every chance to go after the Chinese Communists who are killing them. He regards the United Nations as a forum of appeasement, whose present leadership and policies have failed.

The loquacious Harold Stassen, just returned from a 34,-000-mile trip around the world, says prospects for peace are brighter, and that the plotters in the Kremlin will set off revolution in Russia if they plunge into all-out war. He thinks the Red army will turn against the Soviet government in the event of war.

Stassen's observations are surrounded by an aura of unrealism. In Washington they are largely brushed aside as wishful thinking.

WOOL SHORTAGE

Belgium, Italy, France and other European countries are outbidding the United States for Australian wool, according to H. J. Devereaux, South Dakota wool man, who has returned from a two months' trip down under.

Australians cannot understand, Mr. Devereaux says, why the United States has asked that it be favored in exports of wool at the same time that it is furnishing money for other baby sitter if she were to practice countries to outbid it for the fleece. His observations leave no gradually at being out of his sight doubt that wool prices, now at unprecedented high levels, will right in the house; later to put on her hat and coat and walk around go still higher.

Australia today has 6,000,000 more sheep than the United States and Australian sheepmen are highly prosperous. The Australian wool clip, worth $16,000,000 in 1932, jumped in value to $168,000,000 in 1949 and an amazing $420,000,000 last year.

The Will To Win (By HOLMES ALEXANDER)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 17 .- "Industrial potential" is an unbeautiful cacophony of syllables, but it is sweet as a love song when it spells out the tremendous superiority of the U. S. over the U.S.S.R.

Much is being written and said about the identity of our allies and the size of our armed forces, and these are matters of great importance. But to win World War III we will have to overwhelm Russia in the production line, and here's a matter not too often discussed in vague generalities. Somebody ought to stand up and say—in fact, stand up and prove—that to beat Russia we must first "choose" to do so. If we choose to go in for total mobilization of our labor force, with all the strain and inconvenience that this involves, we can be mortally certain that our fighting units will defeat Russia in the field.

Industrial Work Force Much Larger Our population, to begin at the beginning, is about 150 million as against 200 million Russians. But our industrial work force is much larger and many times more productive than theirs. Latest figures show that the Soviet Union has about 25 million non-farm workers.

We have over 50 million. The reason for the difference is that Russia needs as many farmers as she does factory workers. We need only about 1 farmer to every 6 or 7 non-farm workers, and we still produce more food than we can use. It is true that Russia also has over five million politico-military prisoners who labor as slaves. But it's equally true that the Soviets had seven million military fatalities in World War II, men and women in the prime of productive life. It is a loss which easily cancels out the slave-gangs.

Not only does America actually send more workers to the line, but these workers are far more useful than their opposite numbers in Russia. Back in 1940 a Soviet engineer, S. Heinman, visited some mid-west steel plants and wrote a report which contained this sentence: "The production of the American worker is 3.3 times that of the Soviet

Time have changed since then, but the industrial advantage is all on our side. Labor Department experts on foreign industry believe that Russia in 1950 was about where she was 10 years before. The Hitler invasion set the Soviets back just about that much, according to the best information on tap. But we also know that American productivity increases by about two per cent each year. It's an educated guess by officials in the Labor Department that one American worker is now worth about 15 Russian workers in terms of turning out the

Lot More Could Be Said

A lot more could be said on the subject. The legal work week in Russia is 48 hours, but this is very elastic. If a Soviet foreman wants to stay alive, he has to produce government-set quotas every month. For this reason he often drives his fellow-Communists past the point of human efficiency. We know from our own studies that this is a sure way to get inferior products.

Education is another factor. The Russian school system requires years of attendance as against our 12-year minimum requirement. But in the rural sections a Russian child is lucky to get six or eight years of book learning. In America we exert ourselves to save the class dumbbell who may some day end up as a company president. But the Soviets cope with the problem child by throwing him out of school. He then joins the great horde of Russian riff-raff which is practically useless for industrial improvement. These millions can barely read or write, and they have little chance of learning the intricate trade skills which require study and mental application

Russian industry, always on a basis of war mobilization, has only thm margin for expansion. Today our own industry is barely beginning to muscle up for war. Our margin for expansion is enormous. On a program of more work, less play, no luxuries and no exemptions, the sky's the limit to our capabilities. Such a program involves the "sacrifices" which our statesmen often mention, but do not quite dare call upon us to make.

Yet make them we must to be sure of winning World War III. We difference to one side, it seems to are the only country on earth where the chance to "choose" victory

Castlewood Will Hear Missionaries

The annual missionary conven-The annual missionary convention of the Castlewood Christian and Missionary Alliance church will begin this evening and will continue each night at 7:30 through Sunday evening, Jan. 21. On the program this year are two very interesting missionaries, Rev. Frederick A. Smith, Colombia, South America and Rev. Michael South America, and Rev. Michael Kurlak, French West Africa.

Rev. Smith went to Colombia in 1939 and has completed two terms of service, chiefly among the Paez and Guambiano Indians in the central range of the Andes. These red men retain their ancient tribal languages, customs and dress. To reach them, the Smiths ride horseback two or three weeks at a time, down in hot lowlands and along narrow trails over treeless pla-teaus at 14,000 feet altitude.

Rev. Kurlak began his missionary career in 1923 and has completed five terms in French West Africa. For his first eight years he labored in Timbuctoo on the edge of the great Sahara desert, engaging principally in evangelism and translation. It was his joy to lead to the Lord and baptize the first convert from Mohammedanism in Timbuctoo, and complete the translation into the Sonrhais language of the New Testament which was publisher by the National Society of Scotland.

The work in these countries, the way of life and dress will be given very realistically by messages, slides and costumes each evening

Budget For 1951 Well Under Way

No Tax Increase Likely This Year

The county budget for 1951 is well under way and within the next week or ten days the total money required for the conduct of the county's business for the year will be shown. County commissioners and the county controller have been at work for the past two weeks preparing estimates, paring them down and whipping the county general fund and institutional budgets into shape.

There seems little likelihood there will be any tax increase for The present general fund millage is 51/2 and the institutional levy is one mill.

There are few major improvements listed for the year, and ment. among those is the revamping of court room number one.

Renews Demand For Disloyalty Probe In State Department

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17—(INS)
—Sen. Lodge (R) Mass., renewed his demand Tuesday for an independent bi-partisan commission to investigate charges of disloyalty in the State Department. Lodge was a member of a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee headed by former Sen. Tydings (D) Md., which investigated charges brought by Sen. McCarthy (R)

His resolution to set up an independent investigating group was pigeonholed during the 81st Congress and he re-offered it today.

Lodge re-emphasized that neither the President nor Congress is quipped to conduct a satisfactory inquiry and proposed that the commission be staffed with highly-qualified personnel. He added:

Such an investigation will result in cleaning out the unfit and in ending any unjustified suspicion of the many fine men and women who work in the State Depart-

Try And Stop Me In High School Play By BENNETT CERF

Jonathon Daniels probably covered a thousand classics of the track during his newspaper career, but none of them made the impression on him occasioned by a race between five camels at a Carolina carnival early in the century. Nobody remembers who persuaded the owners of the five camels to stage the race, but the first thing anybody knew, people began to bet on the outcome.

Perplexed bookies established initial odds of four to one against all five camels, but just before the race so many big bets were planked down on the one named Ben Marcia Nord and James Dottle play opposite one another in the coming senior high school's class play for its June graduates. Ann might have had an easier time getting the attention of the democratic family council directed toward her problem of attracting the boys without the use of lipstick, rouge, or silk stockings, if PUGILISTIC STAR of Elkins Brothers, New Castle heavyweight, will shine more vividly or be less illuminative, when he battles Bob Satterfield of Chicago, in his second appearance in New York Friday night. In his inaugural in New York City, Brothers battered his opponent into submission within a few rounds.

Brothers took to boxing under the tutelage of Andy Fair, during which time he had a big run of success, his amateur career having been marred only by a decision which Ike Bell gained over him.

Among some of his fights in this section were three fights with Rizieri Ronzi. Brothers won them all, the last by a knockout. He scored a TKO over Sam Santafante, stopped Jeff Clanton and flopped Art Williams.

Williams. Brothers stopped Sal Brunellal in jig time then hospitalized Al Micatrotte in bouts at Flaherty field but fought a poor bout against Johnny Swanton whom Elkins finally T-kayoed in the sixth round.

Brothers left Fair's management in 1947 and in distant cities had more than the usual run of success. He decisioned Eddie Roberts of Washington in four rounds and knocked out Ernie Pope, Washington, in two rounds, after having been floored twice, which goes to show that Brothers can get up from the floor and come on to win.

It took him one round to flatten Eddie Simmons of Baltimore after which he won a six-round decision over Leon Ford of Baltimore His next fight was a one-round K.O. over Baby Kid Nichols of

He was winning from Al Smith in Cleveland when one of Al's punches opened a deep cut above Brothers' eye, and the fight was stopped, lodging a T-kayo against him. Brothers suffered the same fate against Jimmy Freeman of Newark when the cut was reopened. However, The Ring said he was winning when the laceration occurred.

He decisioned Tiger Roy Taylor, one of Joe Louis sparring partners, in six rounds; defeated Lloyd Marshall, then after taking a beating from Joe Lindsey, floored Joe in the fifth and took a six-round

Willie Champion of Cleveland, who was rated as a phenom of amateur fighting, turned pro, and Brothers knocked him out in the second round.

Since then he fought a draw with Pat Comiskey and also one with Arturo Godoy in Washington, D. C., rings. There may have been possibly a couple of fights in which Brothers appeared that no record of was received here.

The writer read recently where Bob won a fight in Chicago, and according to Jack Potter, the fire equipment salesman, and who formerly played first base for the North Hill Red Sox, Satterfield broke even in two battles with Lee Oma. According to Jack, Satterfield handed Lee his first defeat in 16 fights, which was up to the time Ezzard Charles stopped him.

If Brothers can win decisively, and in so doing, show advantageously, he will be on the road to pugilistic fame and fat purses. A win may get him a fight with Bob Baker or Ezzard Charles, the champion, because Charles is taking on all comers.

Stock Market ls Irregular

NEW YORK, Jan. 17 .-- (INS)-The stock market was thrown off balance today by the overnight ments from 50 to 75 per cent. An initial sell-off of fractions to nearly 2 points was followed by a rallying movement which permitted most issues to regain part of their losses and enabled a few to top their previous closing levels. Trading moved along at a fast clip with the ticker falling behind in the early selling and again in the subsequent recovery.
